Meet with your New Advisor

It’s always a good idea to keep in regular contact with your advisor. They can help you set short and long range academic goals, interpret academic policies and procedures, and refer you to campus resources for assistance. When you change your major, be sure to discuss the following items:

- Go through your Degree Audit Reporting Systems (DARS) and discuss your status with the new major.
- Discuss the process of being accepted into the program, if necessary.
- Determine what course of action should be taken.

Remember that some majors need a minor, does yours? Check out the link on the Declare a Major page for a chart that lists all the majors that require a minor.
